Loch Etive Ocean Trout

About Loch Etive Trout

Loch Etive is raised in a glacially carved sea loch on Scotland's West Coast, where cold mountain runoff and fast, high-oxygen currents produce an exceptionally rich trout with 15-20%+ fat content and a deep orange color. This richness makes it ideal for sushi preparations like sashimi and crudo, as well as classic pan-seared, roasted, or smoked presentations. Loch Etive was the first farm awarded RSPCA Freedom Food Assured status and holds Her Majesty's Royal Warrant for quality and consistency.

Product Profile

Loch Etive Trouts high fat count (20+%) , makes the flavor rich, smooth, and perfect for demanding sushi preparations (sashimi/ crudo/tartare) and for white tablecloth restaurant environments (pan seared/ roasted and smoked.) Its deep orange color makes it ideal for the retail environment. This perfect dish is fitting of any table, and is found in the most elite restaurant kitchens on North America and Europe. This trout has received Her Majesty's Royal Warrant for quality and consistency.

Freedom Food

Loch Etive trout are produced in accordance with the RSPCA Freedom Food standards, meaning that superior standards of care protect the fish from birth to slaughter. In addition to each animal receiving a nourishing diet and a spacious environment to grow, extra measures are taken to ensure that the fish enclosures are protected with a special visible top net that will not ensnare birds. In addition, RSPCA insures:

- Freedom from thirst, hunger and malnutrition.
- Freedom from discomfort, pain, injury, and disease.
- Freedom to express normal behavior.
- Freedom from fear and distress.

A Higher Standard

Being open to third party audits hold the farm to a higher standard.
